

To ask for all thy love

John Dowland

To ask for all thy love, and thy whole heart, 'Twere mad- ness.
 He that re- ceiv- eth all, can have no more Than see- ing.
 You can- not ev- 'ry day give me your heart For mer- it;
 Yet if you please, I'll find a bet- ter way, Than change them:

I do not sue, Nor can ad- mit (Fair- - - est) from My love by length Of ev- 'ry hour, Ga- - - thers new Yet if you will, When yours doth go, You - - shall have
 For so a- lone Dear- est we shall Be - - one and you To have all, - yet Who giv- - eth all hath no- thing strength, New growth, new - flow'r. You must - have dai- ly new re-still One to be- - stow: For you - shall mine when yours doth one, An- o- ther's - all. Let us - so join our hearts that to im- part, - But sad- - - ness.

 wards in store, - Still be- - - ing.
 hence de- part - In- her- - - it.
 no- thing may - Es- trange - - them.
